“THE MAN WHO MOVED A MOUNTAIN”

FEBRUARY 14th, 2012

“The Man Who Moved A Mountain” by Richard C. Davis, is a well known book in these parts. It tells the story of a presbyterian minister who devoted his life to bringing the Christian faith and education to mountain folk right here in the Blue Ridge. The minister was Bob Childress.

His grandson, the Rev. Stewart Childress, will present a program on his grandfather, “the man who moved a mountain,” and talk about the rock churches that were built.

The book describes the history and traditions of the Scotch-Irish who settled in these parts.

The way of life of the mountain people who settled here a few generations ago, is largely gone today. “‘The Buffalo used to be as wild as when Pocahontas was here,’ says ninety year-old Ma Sue Hall of Floyd, with a twinkle and just a touch of regret, ‘and now Ph.D.s are getting as common as bootleggers’” (page 252).
