“ONE HEALTH: WHAT IS IT, AND WHY SHOULD WE CARE?”

February 11th, 2020

Dr. Delia Heck will present “One Health: What is it, and Why Should We Care?”

The One Health concept recognizes that the health of people is connected to the health of animals and the environment. The 2019 Novel Coronavirus is a timely example of what the field of One Health entails, why it matters and what we can do about it. Join in a discussion of this emerging field and how it impacts our lives today.

Dr. Delia Heck is a Professor of Environmental Sciences at Ferrum College. She is the Program Coordinator for Environmental Science at Ferrum College. She is also the Division Chair of Natural Sciences. She has been teaching at Ferrum College for 18 years, including courses such as Environmental Planning and Development, Physical Geography, Geographic Information Systems, Natural Resource Management, Natural Resource Policy and Economics and Micro- and Macroeconomics. Her research interests include energy policy, economics, global climate change, and water quality. Dr. Heck earned her Bachelor of Science degree in Regional Development from the University of Arizona and her Masters of Arts and Ph.D. in Economic Geography from the University of Washington.
