“TURNING TO OUR LIVES FOR OUR WRITING LIVES”

August 10th, 2021

10:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m.

James Morrison, Linda Kay Simmons, and Betsy Ashton will present
“Turning to Our Lives for Our Writing Lives.”

We are three storytellers. No one writes in a vacuum, so the program will focus on how each of us mine personal memories to create our works. Each of us approaches our fiction differently. We have different writing habits. We have different ways we weave personal stories into our novels. We will encourage the participants to think of ways they can look into their lives to tell stories.

James Morrison writes history and historical fiction. His books, Bedford Goes To War and The Class of 1940, turn to World War II for inspiration.

Linda Kay Simmons is a writer with a Southern voice who finds inspiration in the characters who grew up in Franklin County. Her novels, Cahas Mountain, Lightning Shall Strike, and Lamb on a Tombstone offer stories with unique characters, often in very uncomfortable situations.

Betsy Ashton loves the darker side of life. She writes suspense, mystery, and coming-of-age novels. Her latest two are a study in contrast. In Eyes Without A Face, a female serial killer uses her own code of ethics to kill people too wicked to live. In Out of the Desert, a young boy grown up in the Mojave Desert, leaves, and returns to find his roots.

Please join us for a great program, fellowship, and invite a friend!
